

Mr. Shin Kataoka

Systems librarian, Library of Kyushu University, Japan

Current role

Currently Shin Kataoka is a systems librarian at Kyushu University in Japan, engaged in providing research tools on the web, an integrated library system and library computers.

He has contributed to the introduction of new tools such as a link resolver, an online citation management tool and an electronic resources management (ERM) system in his university and also does research to provide better library services in the web age.